RE: Proof of ASPA Certification for Timothy Welch

September 28, 2016

To Whom it May Concern:

This is to attest that Timothy Welch has passed the screen printing competency examination of American Screen Printing Association and has achieved ASPA Certified Screen Printer (CSP) status.

The Certified Screen Printer (CSP) examination covers basic screen printing practices and procedures that every screen printer should know. Passing the exam requires a thorough knowledge of fundamental screen printing techniques, procedures and the important aspects of the screen printing process.

The ASPA Certification Program is a service of American Screen Printing Association (ASPA) for the advancement of the profession of screen printing. It was established to recognize and raise the professional status of screen printers by providing a standard of professional competence. It is the only certification program in the industry for verifying screen printers' knowledge of standards, practices, and procedures.
